

I think questions that have no answers shouldn't be asked

Young Min

I think questions that have no answers shouldn't be asked. Because I cannot answer them very well. So I cannot answer and they shouldn't be asked. My sis always asks me a question. She ask me many question all the time. I like when she is curious about things but she's too curious about things. She is curious but too much. And I mostly ignore her when she asks me some wurd questions. Like why does people die? And kill other people? Or why is person die? I have no idea why people dies and kill people. I have no idea! And why do I have to answer that. And I always have to answer that. I always say don't ask me anything exept if its homework. But, she's too curious about things. And my sister asks to my parents now. And they told her to ask me. So there she goes again...Asking wurd things at me. "I don't know anything. Please don't ask me that kind of question. Don't ask me anything exept if its homework. You can ask me like whats 2 X 12 and other things" I say it to her. She stares at me. And ask to me last question. "Who made the earth>". And I think. I think she is ask too much questions. She is too curious. But I think. I'm wondering just like her. "Wait, who made this big earth?" So I knew that God did. And so I tell her. And I learned that everone has some wurd questions. Some wurd questions have no answers. And now, I'm trying to answer most of them I know I kind get why she ask that things. I asked that things when I was young, too.

I think questions that have no answers shouldn't be asked REWRITE

Young Min

I think questions that have no answers shouldn't be asked, because I cannot answer them very well. My sister always asks me a question. I like when she is curious about things, but she's too curious about things. I mostly ignore her when she asks me some weird questions. Like why does people die? And kill other people? I have no idea why they die and kill people! Why do I have to answer that? I always say don't ask me anything except if it's homework. But, she's too curious about things. My sister asked to my parents, and they told her to ask me. So there she goes again...Asking weird things at me. "I don't know anything. Please don't ask me that kind of question. You can ask me like what's 2 X 12 and other things" I say it to her. She stares at me and ask me last question. "Who made the earth?". I think I'm wondering just like her. She ask again "Wait, who made this big earth?" I knew that God did, so I tell her. She help me learned that everone has some weird questions that have no answers. Now, I'm trying to answer most of them and now I kind get why she ask that things. I asked that things when I was young, too. I still do.